GEO. I. HAM INSTANTLY K

A gloom was cast over the Tuesday last upon receipt of a spatch from California on the death of Mr. George I. Ham, an automobile accident. particulars of the sad occurrence not yet to hand. Both he and his son, Harry, had the reputation of expert motorists; in fact, few equals on the Pacific and has successfully competed most severe endurance tests in America. Mr. Ham's long Napanee last summer awakened interest in his Mexican expedition. The events of the last few months in Mexico have opened the eyes of the world to the loose and reckless in which so-called justice is administered in that country. That subject should be held in prison three years without any prospect of approaching a trial of the against him seemed incredible. The fortune of a private citizen took no part in the political affairs of that country could by practice be confiscated and treated as fair Government officials and the ites can hardly be understood in a country like ours. During Mr. Ham's long incarceration neither his nor himself was allowed to look at the evidence against him and although four years have since the officials and their took forcible possession of his valued at several millions, no has yet been rendered as to the terms with his property and information received by him could be obtained with difficulty great expense from outside. It was only during the last two that he learned that a piece of property of his in Mexico city had been disposed of without his ledge for a nominal sum had changed hands for $300,000.

The trials that Mr. Ham encountered in Mexico were sufficient to breed the strongest constitution and no wonder that when he was granted liberty about fourteen months later Felix Diaz he went to his California a nervous wreck. to a strong constitution and the faculty of looking on the bright side of life he regained most of his strength in a tour of the country and revisited his old home in Napanee spending four months in the winter and in camping upon the Quinte. He renewed many acquaintances and greeted them with a pleasant smile and a handshake. The sympathy community goes out to his so family. Mrs. Ham was well in Napanee and vicinity and in city she was a leader of the social foreign quarter.

Mr. and Mrs. Ham were known and no distinguished to the city could be said to have completed the rounds until they had

Overland Model 79

From any Point of View
The World's Greatest Automobile Value

Overland

FROM the standpoint of appearance—the Overland has unusual grace and harmonious body proportions.

From the standpoint of power—the Overland is a big powerful smooth running 35 horsepower car; economical to operate; easy to drive.

From the standpoint of comfort—the Overland is luxuriously upholstered in genuine hand buffed leather, tufted over specially selected curled hair, made deep with tilted divan cushions; lots of leg room; ample for five passengers; no crowding.

From a mechanical standpoint—the Overland chassis is one of the finest and most finished pieces of mechanism in the world.

From the standpoint of size—the Overland has the longest wheelbase of any car at this price in the world; the largest motor, the roomiest tonneau, and the largest tires of any car at this price in the world.

And finally, and most important of all, from a price standpoint—the Overland costs 30% less than any other similar car on the market.

Now from your standpoint—can you afford and does it seem reasonable to pay more for other cars that offer you no more than you get in the Overland for $1250.00?

Easter Millinery

We are opening to-day a choice lot of New Millinery suitable for spring and summer.

The artistic note is strongly pronounced in most of the hats and there are very few, if any, shapes which are too extreme to be generally becoming and to appeal to the taste of the most discriminating wearer.

The use of Taffeta and Moire in both piece goods and ribbon has certainly been revived to greater honors than ever before, they are shown in all colors.

The underbrim trimming is a new feature of Flowers, Osprey, Smart Feather Mounts, Stick-Ups and Wing Trimmings, all being considered very good.

We would also draw your attention to our Children's Hats.

spoiled the Easter festivities in various parts of Italy. At Pagnano, in the province of Treviso, the parish priest and acolytes were shot at and wounded while carrying the sacred image in a public procession. One of the religious canopies was riddled with bullets. At Porto Ferrajo Cathedral, where about 3,000 worshippers were present, a dispute between rival religious confraternities for precedence in the procession developed into a riot. According to Corriere della Sera many women and children and old men were injured during the panic-stricken rush for the doors of the cathedral.

Similar disgraceful scenes occurred at Santo Stefano, near Messina. The peasantry of two adjacent Sicilian villages fought for precedence in the open-air cortege. Sticks, stones and hayrakes were freely used, and the clergy and monks were put to flight. All the sacred images were smashed to pieces. Scores of people were injured. Reinforcements of carabinieri had to be summoned by telegraph.

Catanzaro Cathedral, in Calabria, was also a scene of amazing riots. A new archbishop attempted to suppress certain popular local customs involving the use of pagan symbols, and owing to his instructions being openly disobeyed had laid a neighboring church under three days' interdict. When the archbishop appeared in the cathedral to celebrate Easter High Mass an infuriated throng threatened a tumult, and shrieked curses at him. As it was feared he would be assaulted the clergy hurried him away by a private exit. Troops were sent for to drive the mob out of the cathedral.

SIMPLICITY IS FAVORED

School Teachers Presents Pro- posed Changes in Curriculum.

Ontario Educational Association Will Consider Draft Regulations Which Make Many of the Now Compul- sory Subjects Optional — Studies Are Arranged In Three Groups For Ease of Classification.

TORONTO, April 14.—The simpli- fication of the common school curri- culum, which has been long demand- ed by a section of the public, is pro- vided for in the draft of the new regulations and courses of study of the public and separate schools of this province, just completed for pre- sentation to the Ontario Educational Association for study this afternoon. These amended rules have not been submitted to Hon. Dr. R. A. Pyne, Minister of Education, yet, but go di- rectly before the association through John Seath, Ontario superintendent of education. The simplification of the school studies is made through an extension of the optional princi- ple, so that a school board is at lib- erty to pare down the number of sub- jects taught to a minimum. In forms one to four, the subjects to be taught are now divided into three groups. The first group comprises reading, literature, composition, spelling, grammar, history, geography, writ- ing, arithmetic, manners and morals, and is made compulsory. The second group includes hygiene, physical cul- ture, art, nature study and vocal mu- sic. When the teacher is qualified this group may be taught with the omission of topics duly authorized by the inspector, or local chief inspec- tor. Group number three comprises bookkeeping, manual training, hand- sewing, household science, agricul- ture and horticulture, which are made entirely optional, but the school board may select for teaching any subjects that are desirable and prac- ticable under the conditions of the school. In the fifth form foreign languages, commercial subjects, manual training, household science, horticulture and agriculture, are op- tional.

The new rules also provide for re- ligious instruction in the schools af- ter hours by the clergy of any denom- ination to the pupils of that faith, once a week. Any number of de- nominations may agree to send a par- ticular clergyman to teach the pupils of their church members. Religious exercises consisting of the reading of selected portions of the Scriptures, the recital of the ten commandments, or a Scripture reading of the Inter- national Sunday School Association, are compulsory, but a parent may have his children absent themselves from the schoolroom during the re- hearsal of these exercises.

Changes are made in the basis of the grants to rural schools. These formerly used to be made on attend- ance. Now teachers' salary and school equipment are the main con- siderations in the suggested rules. Formerly no rules for equipment ob- tained in urban districts. The new rules give explicit instructions in this respect.

DEATH CLAIMS BROTHERS.

Pioneers Who Gave Name To Davis- ville Die Almost Together.

TORONTO, April 14.—Two brothers, F. H. Davis, aged 74, 32 Joseph street, Davisville, and A. J. Davis, 76 years, 12 Imperial street, North Toronto, died within four hours of each other yesterday.

Both of them were old residents and well-known figures in North To- ronto, their father, the late John Davis, being the first postmaster of Davisville.

The late A. J. Davis died from the effects of an accident which occurred on Saturday. He was crossing the corner of Shaftesbury avenue and Yonge street when he was run down by a wagon belonging to the Cana- dian Transfer Co. and so severely in- jured that death resulted yesterday morning at his home.

The late A. J. Davis was associat- ed for many years with the pottery works in Davisville but had retired from business a few years ago.

F. H. Davis, whose death occurred at 7.30 yesterday morning had been living in retirement for many years and previous to his death had been in bad health for about eight months. He is survived by one brother, four sons, John J., Fred. H., C. R. and H. B., all of Toronto, and two daugh- ters, Alice, and Mary (Mrs. John Cook).

The funeral of F. H. Davis will take place on Wednesday at three o'clock to Mount Pleasant Cemetery, and that of his brother on Thursday to the same place.

WASN'T NEAR SCENE.

Gunman Made Ant-mortem State- ment—Exonerates Becker.

ALBANY, N.Y., April 14.—Short- y before "Dago Frank" Cirofici went to the death chair in Sing Sing pris- on early yesterday, he told Warden Clancy that "Gyp the Blood," Horo- witz, "Lefty Louie" Rosenberg and Harry Vallon, the informer, fired the shots which killed Herman Rosen- tal, for which crime the four gun- men paid their lives.

The formal statement of the war- len is in part as follows:

"About eight o'clock Sunday night Rosenberg asked me to save Frank, saying he had nothing to do with the shooting, as he was not there. I went over and asked Frank why he did not tell the truth. He replied that he knew what was going on, but was not there when the shooting took place. I advised him to tell the whole story. He said if he did, they would kill his brother. I asked whom he meant by 'they.' He replied that there were fifty men in New York he could name. He said, 'I don't care about myself; it's my family I care for.'

"He finally made the following, among other statements, the pres- ence of myself, Principal Keeper Mc- Inery, the chaplain, his mother and sister. They urged him to tell the whole truth. He hesitated and said:

"I don't want to make any state- ment for the public. I do not fear for myself, but I do fear for you."

"His sister replied: 'Don't have any fear for us; we will take care of ourselves; God will protect us.'

THE BUDGET ANNOUNCEMENTS

THE PEOPLE ASK FOR BREAD AND ARE GIVEN A STONE.

So far as the average consumer or producer is concerned Hon. W. T. White's budget announcement of tariff changes, is a case of asking for bread and receiving a stone. In all there are some sixty tariff changes. The farmers get one small concession. The consumers get none at all. The iron and steel men and the manufacturers and other special interests get all the rest.

For the agriculturist there is a reduction of five per cent on binders and reapers, leaving the duty still at twelve and a half per cent on these implements while on the bulk of all other farm machinery the protection remains as high as ever. That is the answer to the demand of the Liberal party and of the organized farmers of Canada for free agricultural implements. The answer to the demand for free wheat and wider markets was a polite but unequivocal negative. The demand of the consumers for a lessening of the burden of tariff taxation, and for free food stuffs, to meet the steadily increasing cost of living, got no response from the avowed advocates of the protective system all round. Instead of that the manufacturers of some of the basic items entering into the cost of living were given increased protection. Restriction of trade, restriction of the rights of consumers and producers alike to buy and sell in the best and cheapest markets, was the keynote of the tariff changes, rather than greater freedom for the common people from the burden of protected monopoly.

The imposition of a duty on wire rods, hitherto on the free list, means primarily an increase in the cost of nails effecting practically every consumer in Canada. The raw material will be higher to the extent of the duty on wire rods, and the cost of nails will be increased by 25 per cent.

brakes on his spendthrift colleagues, and kept expenditures within bounds, in the face of falling revenue. But instead of that expenditures have gone up at a record rate and during the last few months especially revenues have fallen at an equally record rate.

The increase in total expenditure during the past fiscal year has been nearly $40,000,000 or some $5 per head of population. The decrease in revenue has been approximately $6,000,000. It is still falling, but the appropriations for the present fiscal year indicate a still further increase in expenditure above the total of $183,500,000 spent for the year just ended. During the past year the national debt has increased by some $20,000,000. For the coming year Mr. White prophesied further borrowing at high interest rates and another substantial increase in the national debt.

It is in the increase in the cost of ordinary administration, however, that the "dash-away-and-spend-the-money" policy of the present administration is most apparent. Last year the increase in consolidated fund expenditure was $14,506,000. For the first two complete fiscal years of the Borden Government the increase in the ordinary expenses of the Government has totalled over $28,000,000 or nearly $4 additional for every man, woman and child in Canada. Just why it should cost four dollars a head more to govern the country now than under Liberal rule, had not been explained by Mr. White.

Three years ago Mr. Borden declared that ten or eleven million dollars might easily be saved in the expenses of administration. After he has been in power a little over two years this "saving" has been changed into an increased expenditure of nearly three times that amount. In the last complete fiscal year of the Laurier Government the total expenditure on consolidated fund account was $86,774,198. For the second complete fiscal year of the Borden Government the total expenditure on consolidated fund account has been $123,500,000. For the last complete fiscal year of the Laurier Government the total expenditure on both consolidated fund and capital accounts was $122,861,250. For the second complete fiscal year of the Borden Government this has been increased to $183,500,000.

In three years consolidated fund expenditure has been increased by nearly $39,000,000 while total expenditure has been increased by $96,625,000. The increased expenditure has all to come out of taxation. Instead of reducing taxation and giving relief to the consumers from the high cost of living the Government has increased

The estimates already brought down for the current fiscal year are exclusive of supplementary estimates. In addition, over $43,000,000 is to be voted on capital account. Mr. Rogers will spend this year about one-quarter of the total revenue from customs and excise. What his expenditure will be in an election year can only be left to the imagination.

HON. W. T. WHITE AND THE PEOPLE.

IN SERVING SPECIAL INTERESTS MINISTER OF FINANCE FORGETS ESSENTIALS OF NATIONAL PROSPERITY.

All his life Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance in the Borden Government, has been the servant of Big Interests. From the time when he entered as a young man into the employ of large corporate concerns he has been the Man Friday of the privileged classes. So long as Mr. White served them in his private capacity and placed his talents at their disposal for a stated remuneration, little exception could be taken to his course. But when Mr. W. T. White, manager of trust companies and other concerns, became Hon. W. T. White, custodian of the public treasury of the people of Canada, his responsibilities became far more extensive and his obligations were transferred to a larger and more cosmopolitan clientele. Mr. White became the trusted servant of his country and its citizenship. His efforts should have been transferred wholeheartedly and unreservedly to the advancement of the general public welfare.

How has Hon. W. T. White carried out his great trust? He has had grave and serious responsibilities. Synchronizing with the advent of the Borden Government the period of good times and prosperity which characterized the progress and development of Canada under the Laurier regime came suddenly to an end. Money stringency, increased cost of living, unemployment, and the keen and bitter bite of hard times came upon the Dominion. Mr. White argues that the Borden Government was not to blame for this. He ascribes it all to the phenomena of recurring economic cycles—whatever that may actually mean—and talked learnedly about them. His budget speech was full of explanations, and apologies.

But progressive and virile Canadians eager for the well being of the country and its citizenship, anxious to see early betterment of conditions, keen for Canada to renew her onward march on the Laurier lines of progress and prosperity, expected more than explanations and apologies from the man who had been entrusted with the economic reins. They looked, Canadian-like for action. They looked for enunciation of a strong progressive policy along lines of betterment by a man whose talents and energies were presumably consecrated, for the time being, to their service.

The confidence of Canadians has been misplaced. Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance, is still the Man Friday of the privileged Big Interests. His thought is still for them. His endeavor is still for their advantage. His concern is still for their aggrandizement. Toward the common people the hewers of wood and drawers of water, the working Canadians, he evinces no responsibility and no concern. He makes no move to help them. He enunciates no legislation to better their condition. He has no inspiring message to encourage them to renewed endeavor. Hon. Mr. White still serves exclusively the protected and privileged classes. His is a manufacturers' budget.

THIS NEW MEDICINE SAVES YOUR MONEY

We are druggists right here town and make a living out of drug business, but it is because we like to see people suffer—we Our duty is to render the best we can, and when someone is we are interested in seeing the the best medicine there is for particular trouble. We don't mend "cure-alls," as we don't there are such things. We want you to spend more than have to. changes, rather than greater freedom for the common people from the burden of protected monopoly.

The imposition of a duty on wire rods, hitherto on the free list, means primarily an increase in the cost of nails effecting practically every consumer in Canada. The raw material will be higher to the extent of the duty imposed, namely $2.25 per ton under the British preference and $3.50 per ton under the general tariff. The imposition of a duty on iron and steel beams and on the heavier products of the iron and steel industry means, if the duty is to be of any assistance to its proposed beneficiaries, an increase in the cost of structural iron and steel for building and manufacturing purposes. This increase in cost must ultimately filter down to the general consumer. Similarly the imposition of a ten per cent duty on brass sheets, bars and rods means increased cost to the consumer on everything into which these raw materials of manufacture enter.

In the United States, and practically throughout the world, the movement of public opinion is towards freedom in matters of trade and in regard to the relief of the people from the exactions of monopoly or from the exactions of the special privileges of wealth and vested interests. In Canada alone, the present Conservative Government is moving in the other direction. For the first time in two decades there has been a tariff revision upwards. The Government has been true to the interests which put it in power and which are now demanding the pound of flesh.

"THE WORST IS OVER."

HON. W. T. WHITE'S FINANCIAL STATEMENT SHOWS NEED OF "PRUDENCE AND CAUTION."

The financial aspects of the budget statement of the Minister of Finance was in strange contrast to what Canada had been used to under Hon. W. S. Fielding. About the best that Hon. Mr. White could do in the way of optimism was to say "The worst is over." But even of this he was not very certain. There must be still, he said, prudence and caution. Mr. White might have spoken more correctly had he omitted the word "still." The results of his financial administration for the past fiscal year certainly show no evidence of prudence or caution. It would have been the part of prudence or caution to have put the

In three years consolidated fund expenditure has been increased by nearly $39,000,000 while total expenditure has been increased by $60,639,000. The increased expenditure has all to come out of taxation. Instead of reducing taxation and giving relief to the consumers from the high cost of living the Government has increased expenditures to the extent of about $8 per capita and is now increasing taxation by boosting the custom duties to help a few of the manufacturers.

ANOTHER INVESTIGATION STARTED.

"WASTE" ON THE NATIONAL TRANSCONTINENTAL UNDER THE BORDEN GOVERNMENT NOW BEING SHOWN UP.

The Liberals in the Commons are starting to do a little investigation on their own account in connection with the construction of the National Transcontinental railway under the present Government. It will be remembered that Messrs. Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton, although their commission from the Crown instructed them to investigate the whole work of construction up to the present time, stopped short in their investigations with the advent of the Borden Administration. Otherwise, they might have found some real charges as to "waste" reflecting on their own party friends.

There is a prima facie case at least of the "waste" of $400,000 of the people's money in payments made for over-classification and over-break which, if it had been done under a Liberal Government, would, according to Messrs. Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton, have been played up as a huge scandal. The Liberals in the Public Accounts Committee have started an investigation into the settlement effected last year by Major Leonard, the present chairman of the National Transcontinental Commission with Mr. J. D. McArthur, the contractor of the Superior Junction to Winnipeg section of the road. Under the late Government a Board of Arbitrators was appointed to consider the amount which should be deducted from Mr. McArthur's accounts because of over-break and over-classification. The Board of Arbitrators after careful investigation found that the amount to be deducted should be $550,000. Mr. McArthur protested the finding but the former Commissioners and the ex-minister of railways, Hon. George P. Graham, declined to allow Mr. McArthur anything beyond what the Board of Arbitrators were willing to allow. After the Easter recess Major Leonard will be called upon to testify before the committee as to why he went behind the award of the Board and gave contractor McArthur $400,000 more than the Liberal Government was willing to allow him.

HON. ROBERT ROGERS DASHING AWAY.

A REMARKABLE GROWTH OF EXPENDITURES IN HIS DEPARTMENT.

The growth of expenditures in the Public Works department under the administration of Hon. Robert Rogers who knows how "to win elections without prayers" accounts in large measure for the very rapid increase in expenditure under the present Government.

Here is the list of expenditures for the department for the past two years and the proposed expenditure for the present fiscal year:

	Expenditures.
1911.....	$10,818,834
1912.....	11,651,947
1913.....	13,158,077
1914 (Estimated).....	18,000,000
1916 (To be voted).....	28,330,048

evinces no responsibility and no concern. He makes no move to help them. He enunciates no legislation to better their condition. He has no inspiring message to encourage them to renewed endeavor. Hon. Mr. White still serves exclusively the protected and privileged classes. His is a manufacturers' budget.

Liberalism is not demagogism. Canada is a cosmopolitan country, and Canadians are a cosmopolitan people. Mr. White has failed to live up to the high possibilities of his position as Minister of Finance, not because he has served the manufacturers, but because he has served the manufacturers only. A Minister of Finance who faithfully served the public interests in this time of economic crisis would have devoted his efforts to the betterment of all. He would have legislated for the farmer and the mechanic as earnestly and as faithfully as he legislated for the manufacturer. He would have known the national weal. He would have "played no favorites."

Canada is a young country. "Her future is before her." And it is essential to her continued development and prosperity that her diversified and cosmopolitan citizenship shall be linked together in co-operative cameraderie, free from the class distinctions and sectional differences which have proved the centuries—old drag upon the progress of the old world. The farmer can best prosper working with—and not against—his manufacturing fellow-citizen. The artisan can make most progress when he advances hand-in-hand with the yeoman. "Working together" must be the key-note of Canada's national shibboleth.

Mr. J. G. Turriff, the outspoken Liberal from the new western Province of Saskatchewan, pointed out to Parliament where Mr. White had erred in seeking to serve one class at the expense of the others.

"The way to help manufacturers," Mr. Turriff told Mr. White, "is to do all we can to make prosperous the farmers and other citizens of Canada. Put the farmer in a position to get value for his product and he will keep the factories busy. But so long as you keep him from getting value so long will you keep him poor and the factories will run on half-time while the manufacturers come to the Minister of Finance for more protection. You cannot remove depression by increasing the burdens on the people by means of tariffs. If you want to help the manufacturer, then put money in the people, and the manufacturer will have a rich market at home."

It was a realization of the sound economic good sense and splendid national results resultant from the practice of this doctrine of national co-operation and national cameraderie which enabled the Liberal regime under Sir Wilfrid Laurier to be one notable for prosperity and good times. Canada must return to such principles if she is to come again into her own, and renew her onward march along lines of progress and prosperity.

Just Like a Husband.

"My husband is one of the most stubborn men in the world."

"He can't be any more stubborn than mine."

"Oh, yes, I'm sure he must be. Yesterday I had an engagement to meet him at 3 o'clock."

"Yes?"

"Well, it was nearly 4.30 when I got there, and he won't admit yet that the rest he got while he was waiting did him any good."

The Perfect Day.

There is, perhaps, one such day in every one's life. It is seldom when the whole world seems to be in a nebulous light, when the air is quite real or quite calm when the entire universe might bubble to break with touching one is beyond one's body, at soul, when everything—even birds in their bursts of song at the silences, the flowers, the—conspires for perfection. Such moments come only when one's spirit first touches another's, or at least are transmutated the first kiss, the first spoken of love.—From "Simpson," by Mordaunt.

Mme. Tetrizzini says that the most amusing experiences of her younger days occurred when her sister were touring together were leaving some lodgings they had been very comfortable. "After thanking the landlady," Mme. Tetrizzini says, "she said to us both by looking at us in a kindly and condescending way: 'That's all right, my dear said. I'm always good to them for I always say to myself that they know but what my own child may come to it!'"

The Feast of Dalls.

The feast of the dolls is a quaintest of all the little Ja girls' festivals. In the store where are kept all the family wares, there are boxes filled with which have come down from grandmothers and great-grandmothers. Each new bride takes her when she goes to her father's house, and she keeps the feast year till her eldest daughter is old enough to take it up.

GIGANTIC SEA WAVES.

Force of Those Raised by Earthquakes or Violent Storms.

The term tidal wave is erroneously applied to almost any unexpected wave that inundates the seacoast or the shore of a great lake. These waves are rarely if ever due to the tides since the real tidal wave is a phenomenon admitting of exact calculation and prediction, but they may be traced usually to some distant earthquake or violent storm.

When an earthquake occurs beneath the sea the vertical movements of the sea bed generate a great wave, which is propagated outward from the center of the shock and reaches the land after the arrival of the earth wave. In the open sea this wave is so broad that it cannot be perceived, but when it reaches shallow water near the shore it rushes forward as an immense breaker, sometimes sixty feet or more high and overwhelming everything in its course.

The sandy beach deposits and loose boulders are swept away, while inland the surface is strewn with debris. The velocity of these great sea waves is greater than the ordinary waves raised

AN UGLY VISITOR.

His Unwelcome Call Brought About a Dramatic Situation.

The London representative of an East Indian firm was working late at the warehouse. A large consignment of goods, newly arrived, lay in the room that adjoined his office. The room was a simple affair of four chart covered walls. There was a desk in the middle, a few chairs, and a large fireproof safe. It was nearly midnight, when a sound from the next room induced the man to go to the door to investigate. Nothing seemed wrong and he returned to his work, but left the door ajar.

Presently a faint, harsh sound came from the next room. He sprang up to behold the head of a snake protruding through the doorway.

When the reptile saw him it stopped for a second, reared its head until it was almost on a level with the man's and began to dart its tongue angrily in and out of its mouth.

No novelist ever imagined a more desperate situation. The man was unarmed and apparently without means of escape. The moment he withdrew his eyes from those of the snake, it lowered its head and moved toward him.

But he had already determined on his course. The great safe stood open. He sprang into it and closed the door behind him, although he did not shut it completely. That would have meant slow but certain suffocation. He slipped a small cashbook into the aperture and held the ponderous door open about half an inch.

Meanwhile the python—for such it was—in a paroxysm of fury, had flung its coils twice round the safe, which stood some distance out from the wall. The creature drew its coils to the utmost tension in an angry effort to crush the iron safe.

By an effort the desperate prisoner collected his wits. He remembered that a case, slightly damaged and marked, "to be kept in a moderately warm place," had been put in the adjoining room, and doubtless accounted for his horrible visitor. But the explanation, although simple, offered no consolation. Something must be done. The captive racked his brain sorely until an idea struck him. Earlier in the evening he had put one of the ledgers in the safe with a long, black eraser inside to mark a special entry. Cramped and almost doubled as he was, he found it no easy matter to reach the slender weapon, the blade of which was as sharp as a razor. Taking his courage in both hands he plunged the knife again and again into the folds of the snake, where they crossed the small aperture. There followed a horrible, tearing sound, and the massive safe rocked ominously for some moments. Then suddenly the folds seemed to relax and go writhing to the floor.

Owing to the extreme tension of the coils the keen blade had almost severed the body in half. From head to tail it measured nearly forty feet.

The velocity of these great sea waves is greater than the ordinary waves raised by the wind. A submarine earthquake near the coast of Japan in 1854 gave rise to sea waves which traversed the whole breadth of the Pacific at a rate of about 370 miles an hour. At Smoda, Japan, the waves were thirty feet high, while at San Diego, Cal., they measured only six inches. Such an earthquake wave near the coast of Peru once lifted a gunboat of the United States navy and landed it a mile inland.—Kansas City Star.

STAGE GHOSTS.

Kean's Contrivance to Make the Shade of Banquo Realistic.

I think it was Charles Kean who first resorted to illusion to make a stage ghost a little transparent, says a writer in London Tit-Bits. When he produced "Macbeth" at the old Princess' theater he manufactured a contrivance which allowed Banquo's ghost to appear through a transparent column.

Later on, when Mrs. Ann Radcliffe's "Romance of the Forest" was staged at Covent Garden theater, those responsible for its production arranged that the spook in the piece should be seen by the audience through a gauze of bluish gray color, so that the too corporeal effect of a live actor might be removed.

When the old playhouse in Drury lane opened, in 1794, with a performance of "Macbeth," Banquo's ghost was omitted. Although Mr. Kemble's acting was fine enough to make the audience almost believe that they really did see the ghost, yet the people were not satisfied until the system they had been used to was readopted and Banquo's shade allowed to trot bodily across the boards.

Reflecting mirrors and the cinematograph are coming in general use at the theaters, and with them it has been found possible to manufacture ghosts capable of striking terror into the hearts of all followers of the occult.

Rudeness About Doors.

Never mind if you do not happen to know the person who is coming behind you. Hold the door or gate open for him just the same. Of course the next in order may be several steps behind, or you may be obliged to save two seconds to catch your train. You may in cases like these feel compelled to slam a door or gate in the face of an innocent fellow being. But in scores of instances recently observed doors and gates have been slammed in the faces of those following by boorish men and women, apparently out of sheer clownishness. Sometimes the person thus insulted may happen to be one whom you may wish to please. It pays to be a lady or a gentleman, even when you think you are among strangers.—Kate Upson Clark in Leslie's.

Eased His Mind.

Having suffered mental anguish, to say nothing of damage to his reputation as a poet, from typographical arrangements, transpositions and other accidents incidental to the careless handling of verse, I submit herewith a form of stanza which I believe to be proof against such vicissitudes. It reads the same backward and forward, up and down and standing on your head:

WE SHOULD WORRY.

Should we all worry?
We should worry, all.
All worry, should we?
Worry all we should.

A Famous Old Paper.

It would be difficult to find a paper with a more romantic history than La Gazette de Hollande. In the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries statesmen of the first rank were her contributors—Lord Chesterfield and Frederick the Great, king of Prussia, to name but two of an illustrious roll. During the war of independence Washington sought the sympathy of Europe through its columns. In 1810 it was temporarily suppressed by Napoleon. In its modern form La Gazette has accomplished good work in making the Netherlands and her colonies better known beyond their own boundaries.

Pompeii.

Pompeii was destroyed by an eruption of Vesuvius on the night of Aug. 24, A. D. 79. The ashes buried the whole city and covered the surrounding country. After a lapse of 1,500 years a countryman as he was turning up the ground found a bronze figure, and this discovery led to further search, which brought various objects to light, and at length the city was uncovered.

George Ade on Matrimony.

George Ade, discussing matrimony in an after dinner speech at the Chicago Athletic club, said:

"Marriage has the effect of giving a man a swelled head.

"Many a time, looking at this husband or that, I say to myself:

"'Ah, if that man were only as wise as he thinks his wife thinks he is!'"

Easy Way Out.

The grandfather laughed again. "A full supply, eh? Well, dearie, you go back and tell him I'm so busy playing with you that I haven't any time to bother with him. Just tell him there's nothing doing to-day."

"And if he won't go away, gran'pa?"

"Then you tell him there's an old boy in here who will come out and chase him down the highway. But I guess he's got sense enough to see he can't do business with us—we're much too young for him. But wait, sweetheart. Tell him that some time when he has a long, long sleep in his basket he can leave it at the door. But there's no hurry."

So the child went to the door and delivered her message and came back.

"It's your shot, gran'pa," she said. And their laughter mingled.

Courageous Duellist.

M. Colombey, in his history of duelling, tells an anecdote of a certain noted duellist of his time. One day this man, M. B——, was at Desenne's shooting-gallery watching the pistol practice. There was one man who was shooting very well, and Desenne was threatened with the loss of all his glass balls and swinging dolls.

Every shot was greeted by the spectators with exclamations of admiration. B—— looked on for a while, and finally, in a calm voice, made the remark: "He could not do as well on the field."

The object of the slighting remark turned around, and, in a loud and angry tone, cried: "Who are you to say that? Would you like to test the truth of your remark?"

"Willingly," replied the unrecognized duellist, as he led the way out to a secluded place.

After taking their respective positions, they drew lots, and it fell to B—— to shoot last. He waited in silence for his adversary's shot. The man fired—and missed. B—— lowered his pistol.

"What did I tell you?" he said, with a smile.

Then putting his pistol in his pocket he walked away whistling.

Seventeenth Century Napkins.

About 1650 Pierre David published the "Maistre d'Hostel," which teaches how 'o wait on the table properly and how to fold all kinds of table napkins in all kinds of shapes." The shapes were "square, twisted, folded in bands and in the forms of a double and twisted shell, single shell, double melon, single melon, cock, hen and chickens, two chickens, pigeon in a basket, partridge, pheasant, two capons in a pie, hare, two rabbits, sucking pig, dog with collar, pike, carp, turbot, miter turkey, tortoise and the Lorraine cross."

Mr. Taft's Double.

So much like Ex-president W. H. Taft is Mr. J. C. Judd, of Ottawa, that after the Canadian Club luncheon recently Sir William Mackenzie met Mr. Judd in the rotunda of the Chateau Laurier and mistaking him for Mr. Taft offered congratulations on delivering such a splendid address. When Sir William was notified of his mistake by Mr. Judd he declared that he had never seen two men look so much alike.

Later Mr. Taft and Mr. Judd met, and the former agreed that Mr. Judd was his double.—Ottawa Free Press.

Hanna—Storey.

On Wednesday, April 15th, at the Rectory, Napanee, was the scene of a quiet but happy event, it being the marriage of Miss Lena Victoria Evelyn Hanna, formerly of Pembroke, Ont., and Mr. Charles Leslie Storey, only son of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Storey, Napanee. Rev. W. E. Kidd officiated. The bride was attired in her travelling suit of navy serge with silk blouse to match and wore a panama hat with trimmings of moiré ribbon and white plumes held in place by touches of for-get-me-nots. Her only ornament a gold bar pin with pearl and sapphire setting and a corsage bouquet of Violet completed a very becoming costume. Mrs. C. Walker, attended her sister and looked well in a suit of brown. Mr. C. Walker assisted the groom. Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom left on the 4.10 p.m. train for a trip to Stirling, Peterboro, and other points west. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Storey will reside near Napanee.

HORSES "WALK PLANK."

Cross Deep Ravine on Single Log.

The surefootedness of the mule is proverbial, but the feats of this animal are rivalled by those of the pack-horses used by the Dominion Forestry Branch surveyors in the wild timbered regions of Northern Canada and the Rocky Mountains. Laden though they are with "grub," as the surveyors term provisions, these horses can swim wide rivers, ford shallow ones or follow the men of the party over a single log, often no more than a foot in diameter, which bridges a deep narrow mountain gorge where a fall would mean instant death or worse. They can even follow the foresters through the sloughs, muskegs and wind-thrown brule characteristic of this northern forest, which is saving a good deal for mere horse, for as one of the forest surveyors writes from the primeval forest near Lesser Slave Lake, "A forester needs to be here, besides all other professional titles, a real bushman, an axe-man and a jumper."

There were eight forest-survey parties engaged in demarking forest and agricultural lands in the far west last summer, and their reports which will appear in the annual report of the Director of Forestry, Ottawa, contains accounts of actual adventures which rival the most fictitious. The total area examined last summer was about 11,000,000 acres, some on the rough slopes of the Rockies, some in the rocky areas of Manitoba and Saskatchewan and some in the low-lying and muskeg region of northern Alberta. Very little land was found fit for agriculture in these regions, and most of it is recommended as forest reserves. The present area of the Dominion Forest Reserves is 23,017,504 acres, or nearly 36,000 square miles. If all present recommendations for reserves are approved by Act of Parliament the area will be doubled. In comparison, the National Forests of the United States cover an area of 257,855 square miles, yet Canada is larger than the United States and contains larger land areas fit only for tree growth.

On Monday morning a fire was discovered in the rooms over Miss Allingham's store on John street, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Caton. The firemen were on the scene in a very few minutes and in a short time had the blaze out. The plaster on the ceiling of one room was destroyed and the floor of another room. The furniture and household goods of the tenants and Miss Allingham's fancy goods stock were damaged with smoke and water. The fire caught from a shovelful of hot coals used to burn sulphur for fumigating.

Temporary Passenger Service Between Napanee and Ottawa, Announced by the Canadian Northern Railway.

Owing to numerous requests from the travelling public for some accommodation over the Canadian Northern Railway's recently completed line between Napanee and Ottawa, the Company, commencing Thursday, April 9th, is operating a passenger coach on freight trains No. 93 and 94, which will leave Napanee at 6.50 a.m. and arrive at Ottawa at 4.00 p.m., returning leave Ottawa 9.00 a.m. and arrive at Napanee 9.45 p.m. This service is daily except Mondays. Details of the full passenger service can be obtained from any Canadian Northern Agent. It is hoped that this temporary measure will prove a convenience to those residing at intermediate points.

Spraying Demonstrations.

Last spring the Department of Agriculture conducted pruning and spraying demonstrations in five orchards in the county. One of these was held at the farm of C. W. Neville, Switzerville. As a result of the demonstration, Mr. Neville pruned, scraped the old bark off the tree-trunks, and sprayed his orchard twice. As a result Mr. Neville had a very large crop of apples, that graded mostly number 1, and from 300 bearing trees he sold over $900 worth of apples. This was the result in a year when the tent-caterpillars were so bad that many orchards did not yield any first class fruit. There are thousands of apple trees in this county that could be made to bear good fruit through a little care and attention. The first step is to prune the tree, cutting out all dead and cross branches, and to scrape the rough bark off the trunks. The tree should be sprayed, once before the leaves come out, once just before the blossoms open, and then just after the blossoms fall. The Department of Agriculture will be pleased to assist any farmer or fruit-grower who wishes to spray. Full information may be obtained from Mr. G. B. Curran, Agricultural Office, Napanee.

THE WEEK IN THE LEGISLATURE

CONSERVATIVE YOUNG MEN.

Quite the most significant event of the week was the deputation of Conservative Members of the Ontario Young Manhood Association, which waited upon the Government and presented a petition signed by 9000 Conservatives asking for more advanced Temperance legislation by the Government. The petition requested:

"That you pass an Act in the Legislature abolishing all liquor shop, bar and Club licenses in the Province, such legislation to come into effect only—and thereupon automatically—after a majority of votes have been cast in its favor, in a plebiscite on the question, presented to the people within a year after the passing of the said Act." The memorial signed by the deputation representing the Executive declared:

"Supporting loyally as we have done, and as we do now, the general record of the present Government and its many advanced policies, it would be with reluctance that we should find ourselves obliged to forsake the Conservative party in order to see a Liberal Temperance proposal through, but if the present situation continues we will feel morally bound to pursue that course."

The petition presented was over 200 yards long. It would have extended from the door of the Parliament Buildings, past Sir John A. McDonald's monument to College Street, or, if it had been unrolled on Queen Street, would have reached from the corner of Queen and Yonge past the City Hall to Terauley Street.

The Government was non-committal in its answer to the deputation. More of the matter will undoubtedly be heard, as the petition revealed a widespread revolt among the young men of the Conservative party on the temperance question.

BLOCKING AGAIN.

G. Howard Ferguson, Chairman of the Public Accounts Committee, on whose behalf, with others, the second indemnity Bill was rushed through at the recent all-night session, and who was chairman of the notorious Public Accounts and Privileges and Elections Committees last year, is again using the steam roller. The Liberals are making an effort to have the actions of Inspector Snider against the Canada Temperance Act in Peel, Huron and Welland probed and the Liberal members of the Public Accounts Committee moved that that Committee ask the Legislature to allow them to go into this matter. Mr. Ferguson, however, ruled the motion out of order. Mr. Proudfoot appealed from the ruling of the Chair, but the Conservative majority sustained Mr. Ferguson. This, too, is a matter of which much more is likely to be heard.

GOOD ROADS.

The Highway Commission in its report to the House recommended for good roads a capital expenditure of $30,000,000 extending over fifteen years, the Province to contribute $12,000,000, Counties $12,000,000 and the Cities $6,000,000; a Highway Department to be created under a Deputy Minister; an increase in the tax on Motor Vehicles on a horse power basis to bring in $400,000 a year and a light tax on horse-drawn vehicles.

LEGISLATURE NOTES.

Hon. I. B. Lucas introduced amendments to the Supplementary Revenue Act increasing the taxes on banks, insurance and loan companies, trust companies, racing associations, tele-

A PLUCKY WOMAN.

Mlle. Marvingt Displayed Marvellous Courage in Accident.

A Paris paper has asked certain prominent women whether or not a woman possesses the physical and moral aptitude necessary to run an automobile. The Dowager Duchess d'Uzes has no doubt in the matter. She thinks a woman can fulfil every requirement, and she herself was the first woman to obtain a chauffeur's license. Mme. Lesueur, the authoress, is of the opposite opinion. She has ridden and driven horses, but says that "between women and horses there exists sympathy, comprehension or understanding, which, of course, cannot be created between woman and machines."

But no better illustration of what a woman is capable of doing can be found than the case of Mlle. Marie Marvingt, the woman aviator. She is just recovering from an aeroplane accident which happened on Dec. 12.

She had been taking her daily flight from Rheims when a fog came on. Choosing a suitable field, she landed safely, but her aeroplane had already run a few yards along the ground when the front part stuck in the soft ground. The machine turned a complete somersault and buried her beneath the frame. After a few attempts to get free she had to resign herself to waiting for help. Her aviation helmet was completely driven in to the ground and her face was dripping with blood.

The plucky aviator could hardly breathe but was able with her left hand to scrape away the earth from about her mouth. After what seemed interminable moments she heard a voice say:

"Oh! Poor fellow, he's dead!"

She cried: so loud as she could:

"She is not dead, but hurry up and, above all, don't smoke!"

She was drenched with petrol and a light brought near would have meant being burned to death. An automobile carried her to the nearest village, where, in the absence of a doctor, she directed the bandaging operations herself. It was her first aeroplane accident in the two years she has been a pilot.

But Mlle. Marvingt is an exception. She has studied law and medicine, singing, painting, and sculpturing, besides which she has also appeared on the stage.

In 1907 she swam through Paris, seven and a half miles, in 4 hours 8 minutes, beating Miss Annette Kellerman's time by an hour. She has climbed all the heights of the Alps, has won innumerable prizes for skiing and bobsleighing. She shoots and fishes and has won a shooting prize at 300 yards under army rules. As a cyclist, she has ridden in the Nancy-Milan, Nancy-Toulouse, Nancy-Bordeaux races.

This accomplished sportswoman rides both astride and sidesaddle, and holds a pilot's license for spherical ballooning and for aeroplanes. She was one of the first women aviators, being a pupil of Latham. Her license dates from 1909, which makes her a veteran in flying.

She has crossed the North Sea in a balloon, taking with her a passenger, M. Garnier, who was making his first ascent. They left the Nancy exhibition at 11 o'clock in the morning on October 26, 1909, and had an excellent trip until night came. At 11 in the evening they reached the Zuyder Zee. Mlle. Marvingt continued and passed the North Sea, with only five sacks of ballast remaining. At

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, April 13.—Most of the speculators in wheat today reached the conclusion that the green bug scare in the northwest had no solid basis. Accordingly the market finished heavy at a decline of $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{1}{2}$ c net. Corn closed $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{1}{2}$ c down, oats off $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{1}{2}$ c, and provisions varying from a loss of $\frac{1}{2}$ to a shade advance.

SOLVING THE WIND

One Big Problem That Bothers
the Weather Forecasters.

CURRENTS THEY CAN'T STUDY

Atmospheric Conditions Away Above the Earth Are Beyond Their Reach and Are Consequently Unknown Factors—Methods of the Ancients.

The art of predicting the weather is one in which it seems at first sight the modern scientist ought easily to surpass his ancestors. Yet it may be doubted whether he is really more successful in it than they were. The meteorological department boasted some time back that their forecasts of weather as published in the daily press were justified by the result in 52 per cent of the cases recorded. As the percentage of correct guesses in a sufficiently extended list, however, would exactly equal the incorrect, this does not show a very great superiority for scientific methods over pure conjecture.

Yet the meteorological department enjoys the advantage, as our ancestors, of course, did not, of elaborate and accurate recording instruments, like Secchi's meteorograph, together with telegraphic reports from weather stations dispersed nearly all over the surface of the globe. Its relative non-success shows perhaps that there is still a factor in the problem which it is at present impossible to estimate.

This is the more extraordinary because the modern method of forecasting the weather differs entirely from that practiced by the ancients. With them it was simply a question of time and season, or, what is the same thing, of the appearance or disappearance of certain stars.

When Hesiod's husbandman saw the Pleiades he knew it was time for him to begin his harvest, and when they set forty days later, his plowing. This might still be a good enough rule for countries near the equator, where the prevalence of trade winds, which blow uninterruptedly in the direction in which the sun appears to travel, and where the monsoons, which in the countries east of Suez blow for six months the other way, help to keep the weather, if not constant, yet regular.

In other latitudes, however, there is no such help, and he who would predict the weather must therefore confine himself to finding out what winds are blowing in other parts of the world and when they are likely to reach him.

As to this, modern science still depends mainly on the observations made by Halley, who discovered in the seventeenth century during a voyage in the tropics how the sun so warmed the air at the equator that the heated air, rising after its manner, dispersed itself toward the poles and was replaced by a rush of cold air from the regions farther from the sun.

This, which explains the phenomenon of trade winds, was really the foundation of modern meteorology, although it was reserved for Halley, some fifty years later, to point out that, thanks to Claquers In French Theatres.

The theatrical claquer has ever been an institution in France, especially Paris, where a "chef de claquer" enjoys a recognized status and receives a comfortable income. It is a mistake to suppose that the only duty of claquers is to applaud. A well organized claquer includes some members who have cultivated the art of infectious laughter. These, called "chatouilleurs," attend the lighter forms of drama and laugh so heartily and naturally that their neighbors join in and leave the house convinced that the play must be a most amusing one. Then, too, there are the "pleureurs," who are paid to shake with sobs at the right moment in melodrama.

a rush of cold air from the regions farther from the sun.

This, which explains the phenomenon of trade winds, was really the foundation of modern meteorology, although it was reserved for Halley, some fifty years later, to point out that, thanks to the rotation of the earth on its own axis, both kinds of winds stray somewhat from their apparent objective.

Later Dove's "law of rotation" was discovered, which declares that in certain latitudes the wind will nearly always follow the sun's motion—i. e., will pass from N. through N. E., and from S. E. to S., completing the circle by passing from S. to N. through the west, but will very seldom move the reverse way.

Finally, there comes in what is known as the law of Busy Ballot, which is that, in the northern hemisphere, if one stands with one's back to the wind the line of lower pressure is always on one's left hand.

This enables us to understand what is meant by the cyclonic and anti-cyclonic disturbances which are so frequently mentioned in the official forecasts as approaching us, generally from the Atlantic.

If within any particular spot the pressure is lower than it is outside it, the wind blows round it in the contrary direction to the hands of a watch and is called cyclonic from the similar behavior of the West Indian hurricanes named cyclones. This is because the lowest pressure to any one standing with his back to the wind is always on one's left hand. If, however, the pressure within the area in question is higher than outside it, the wind blows round it clockwise and is called anti-cyclonic.

One circumstance against modern methods of forecasting the weather correctly outweighs all those in their favor. The winds that can be observed are all those blowing close to the earth's surface. What is the effect of the currents prevailing at even a few miles above it, where, as aviators constantly declare there are even "holes" and "pockets" in the atmosphere? Until there is more information on this, meteorology will not be an exact science.—Detroit Free Press.

Coloring an Abyssinian Bride.

Western brides have an easier time than their Abyssinian sisters. On the occasion of her marriage an Abyssinian bride has to change her skin. From ebony she has to become the color of cafe au lait. To accomplish this the expectant bride is shut up in a room for three months. She is covered with woollen stuff, with the exception of her head. Then they burn certain green and fragrant branches. The fumes which they produce destroy the original skin, and in its place comes the new skin, soft and clear as a baby's.

THE CHIEFEST RESURRECTION

There Will Be Several Classes in the Resurrection.

The Chiefest Resurrection Began With Jesus—His Footstep Followers Will Share In It With Him—Remainder of Mankind Will Be Resurrected During Thousand Years of Messiah's Reign.

PASTOR RUSSELL

April 12.—Pastor Russell delivered an intensely interesting discourse on the Chiefest Resurrection to-day, from the text, "There shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and of the unjust." — Acts 24:15.

By way of introduction to his theme, the Pastor declared that perhaps there had never been a time when the professed followers of Jesus believed less in the resurrection of the dead than at present. This shows a great falling away from "the faith once delivered to the saints"; for the resurrection is the great hope which the Bible sets before mankind.

The speaker cited Scriptures to prove that death is the penalty of sin—the curse upon the race because of Adam's disobedience in Eden. God's declaration that at some future time the Seed of the woman should bruise the serpent's head was the only ray of hope given for two thousand years after sin had entered the world. Then God made a definite statement of His purpose to bless mankind. To Abraham He made known His purpose to bless all the families of the earth.

The Pastor reminded his hearers that God not only made a Covenant with Abraham, but confirmed His Promise with an Oath, to prove the certainty of the whole matter. The Covenant was, "In thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed." Abraham saw into the future with the eye of faith, the speaker asserted. He saw The Christ of glory and the Reign of Righteousness, and under it the recovery of the human family from degradation, sin and death. He discerned that there would be a resurrection of the dead—not merely an awakening to the condition in which they fell asleep, but a raising up to the full perfection of God's image and likeness, from which they fell through Adam's disobedience.

The Law Covenant and Shadow.

The Pastor then discussed Abraham's posterity—the Israelites. God permitted them to become bondsmen in Egypt. Then He brought them up to Mount Sinai, where He entered into a Covenant with them through Moses as mediator, and promised that if they would keep His Law perfectly He would use them to bless all mankind. But He knew that Israel could not keep that Law.

The speaker then explained that God had a double purpose in entering into this Covenant with Israel:

(1) It demonstrated that mankind were sinners and could not keep God's perfect Law, which is the measure of a perfect man's ability;

a cabinet secret was revealed in an amazing fashion by a needy venturous penny a liner at the his resources is related by D. Symon in "The Press and Cry." It was during the adoration of the Duke of Wellington, a juncture when the opposition have given anything for some the cabinet's policy. The secret was guarded until one evening, the rising of the house, a penny who had been hanging about waiting for something to see, saw the duke emerge from the use of lords accompanied by one colleagues.

the duke in his later years, a hard of hearing and cherishing not uncommon illusion of the great in order to make other people he, too, must shout. It occurred to the scribe that if he would follow the prime minister he might hear something to his advantage.

It was dark, so the penny managed to keep well within the shadows and yet to escape remark by the duke was following. He had not been very far before he knew he was in a way. The duke was actually about the situation in his usual manner and gradually proceeded to discuss the policy of the cabinet. The penny a liner listened with all his might and kept well within range of the duke all the way to Apsley house. Upon, with beating heart, he sought some friendly refuge and commenced his discovery to writing. This penny lost no time in calling upon the duke of one of the leading newspapers.

The editor glanced over the article and was thunderstruck when he realized the nature. Here was the very thing which the party had been praying for. The editor inquired how so much of a person could have come to him with very private information. Satisfied, however, of the truth of the duke's story, he decided to print the article. The reporter gave the editor a handsome fee for his enterprise. Next day the appearance of the news, reinforced by a leading article, spread confusion in the government camp. What was the traitor?

What of a hue and cry was raised and the duke's friend fell into suspicion. Relations between the minister and his colleague were somewhat strained, until at last the true story of the remarkable feat was given to the world.

Caillou, a French boy, was asked to take luncheon with his mother and guests on condition that he should eat that which was offered him, no comment. By and by, however, when dessert was on the table, Caillou could not resist a certain temptation.

"Mamma, may I have a sardine, you know very well I may not have a sardine, that is not allowed you. And at you promised me not to ask for anything special to eat."

"I don't want to eat it," was the boy's ingenuous and astonishing answer. "I just want to put it in a glass of water and see it float."—Record-Herald.

perfectly. He would use them to bless all mankind. But He knew that Israel could not keep that Law.

The speaker then explained that God had a double purpose in entering into this Covenant with Israel:

(1) It demonstrated that mankind were sinners and could not keep God's perfect Law, which is the measure of a perfect man's ability; hence no man is entitled to eternal life; for God will give that life only to the perfect.

(2) Another object, an important one, was that the Law Covenant was typical and pointed forward to glorious antitypes, which would bring in the real blessings.

The Antitypes Far Superior.

The Pastor showed that the Law Covenant itself typified a future New Law Covenant, to be in operation for all mankind during the Messianic Kingdom. Its Mediator will be The Christ—Jesus the Head and the Church the Body. As the typical Law Covenant was inaugurated by the sacrifice of bulls and goats, so the antitypical Law Covenant will be inaugurated upon the basis of "better sacrifices" than these. As the typical Covenant had its Day of Atonement, so the antitypical Covenant will have a much greater Atonement Day.

Continuing his explanation, the Pastor demonstrated from Scripture that the offering of the "better sacrifices" takes place during the early part of the antitypical Atonement Day, which began eighteen hundred years ago and is not yet completed. The great Sin-Offering was that of Jesus, finished at Calvary. His secondary offerings, as our great High Priest, have continued ever since. During this period He has been offering up the Church—members of His Body, justified through His precious sacrifice.

The Pastor believes that very soon the antitypical sacrifices will all be finished and all the members of the Body of Christ glorified with their Head, their Lord Jesus. This is the First, the Chiefest Resurrection. Jesus' change to the Heavenly condition at His Resurrection was the beginning of this Chief Resurrection. The glorious change of the last member of the Church will be the consummation.

In this Resurrection, the Pastor declared, only the blessed and holy will have part. Only those accepted by the Lord as members of the Royal Priesthood, and found faithful unto death in presenting their bodies living sacrifices, will be identified with their Master in the great transaction constituting the basis of their exaltation with Him.

Dear Reader---Look Them Over

Why The Harmonic Bridge?

THE different tones in a piano scale are the result of vibrations of wires of varying diameters and lengths.

Roughly speaking, the larger or longer the wire the lower the tone. Absolute purity of tone comes only from strings whose vibrations are confined solely to the space between the bridge at the bottom, and the pressure bar just below the tuning pins at the top. If the strings vibrate beyond the pressure bar they of course make "harsh" tones so often recognized by the cultured ear in even the best pianos.

When you play heavily upon other pianos you force the vibrations beyond the pressure bar, and these harsh tones invariably follow.

Through a patented invention belonging exclusively to these vibrations beyond the pressure bar are purified, and made to harmonize with the true tone of each string, just as notes one octave apart harmonize.

Without the BRASS AGRAFFE HARMONIC BRIDGE indicated by the arrow in the illustration, none can hope to equal the unparelled tone of the New Scale Williams Piano. Your interest in securing the best piano from every standpoint will surely lead you to choose the instrument which combines with exclusive features of mechanical supremacy the most beautiful of cases and the approval of nearly every one of the world's great musicians. Come in to-day and arrange to own one of these superb instruments.

"Well, it's possible, my dear, that he may be a friend. I know so many chaps in London who might be doing this sort of thing, don't you know. Who knows but the chap who's writing her these letters may be one of my best friends? It doesn't pay to take a chance on it. I won't hear to it. If Medcroft knows and his wife knows and Miss Fowler knows, why the deuce should we bother our heads about it? Last night I heard the Medcroft infant bawling its lungs out-teething, I dare say—but did I go in and take a hand in straightening out the poor little beggar? Not I. By the same token, why should I or anybody else presume to step in and try to straighten out the troubles of its parents? It's useless interference, either way you take it."

"I think it's all very entertaining and diverting," said Mrs. Odell-Carney carelessly. She yawned.

"Do you really think so?" asked the doubting Mrs. Rodney. "I was so afraid you'd mind. Your position in society, my dear Mrs.—"

"My position in society, Mrs. Rodney, can weather the tempest you predict," said Mrs. Odell-Carney, with a smile that went to Mrs. Rodney's marrow.

"Oh, if—if you really don't mind"—she mumbled apologetically.

"Not at all, my dear madam," remarked Odell-Carney, carefully adjusting his eyeglass. "It's quite immaterial, I assure you."

CHAPTER XI.

Other Relations.

IT is but natural to presume after the foregoing that the affairs of the Medcrofts were under close and careful scrutiny from that confidential hour. The Odell-Carneys were conspicuously nice and agreeable to the Medcrofts and Miss Fowler. It may be said indeed that Mr. Odell-Carney went considerably out of his way to be agreeable to Mrs. Medcroft—so much so, in fact, that she made it a point to have some one else with her whenever she seemed likely to be left alone with him. The Rodneys struggled bravely and no doubt consen-

London. He wouldn't mention the fellow's name. He only smiled and said, 'Nevah mind, my dear, he's a c'nfended handsome dog.' I daresay he meant that as a compliment for Tootles. She is pretty, don't you think so, dear?"

"She's just like you, Edith," said Constance, who understood things quite clearly.

"Then, in heaven's name, Connie, why are they staring at her so impolitely—all of them?"

"It's because she is so pretty. Goodness, Edith, don't let every little thing worry you. You'll have wrinkles and gray hairs soon enough."

"It's all very nice for you to talk," grumbled Edith. "I'm going mad with loneliness. You have a lover near you all the time—he's mad about you. What have I? I'm utterly alone. No one loves me—no, not a soul!"

"You won't let them love you, Edith," said Constance jauntily. "They all want to love you, all of them."

"I hate men," announced Mrs. Medcroft retrospectively.

Developments of a most refractory character swooped down upon them at the very end of the sojourn in Innsbruck. Every one had begun to rejoice that the fortnight was almost over and that they could go their different ways without having anything really regrettable to carry away with them. The Rodneys were going to Paris, the Medcrofts to London, the Odell-Carneys (after finding out where the others were bent) to Ostend. Freddie Ulstervelt suddenly announced his determination to remain at the Tirol for a week or two longer. That very day he had been introduced to a Mlle. Le Brun, a fascinating young Parisian stopping at the Tirol with her mother.

All might have ended well had it not been for the unfortunate circumstance of Odell-Carney's making a purchase of the London Standard instead of the Times, as was his custom. His lamentations over this piece of stupidity were cut short by the discovery of an astonishing article upon the editorial page of the paper—an article which created within him a sense of grave perplexity. He read the headlines thrice and glanced through the text twice, neither time with any very definite idea of what he was reading. His fingers shook as he held the sheet nearer the window for a final effort to untangle the incredible thing that lay before him in simple, unimpeachable black and white.

"Pon me word," he kept repeating to himself feebly. Then he got up and went off in extreme haste to find his wife.

"My dear," he said to her in the carriage. "I must speak with you alone." She was just starting off for a drive with Mrs. Rodney.

"Bad news, Carney?" she demanded, struck by his expression. She was following him toward a remote corner of the approach. He did not reply until they were seated much nearer to each other than was their wont.

"Read that," he said, slipping the Standard into her hands. "Wot do you think of it?"

"My dear Carney, I don't know. Would you mind telling me what I am to read?"

"The Medcroft thing. Right there." She read the article, her husband watching her face the while. Surprise, incredulity, dismay, succeeded each other in rapid changes. She was reading in sheer amazement of the doings there, let me tell you. And he's not Edith's lover. If he's not her husband, he's playing a part that she understands and approves. And this—this, my dear Carney, may account for the imaginary orphanage of Tootles. Dear me, it's quite a tangle."

"I shall telegraph my solicitors at once for definite news. They'll know whether the real Medcroft is in London, and then—well, by Jove, Agatha, I can't tell just wot steps I'll take in regard to these Rodneys."

He went into a long tirade against the unfortunate Seattleites, as he called them. "Understand me, Agatha, I don't blame Mrs. Medcroft. If she's having an affair with this chap and can pull the wool!"

"But she isn't having an affair with this chap," cried Mrs. Odell-Carney, her patience exhausted. "She's having an affair with a chap in London, the one who writes. Good gracious! Of course! Why, what fools we are. The real Medcroft is in London, and it is he who is writing the letters. How stupid of me!"

"Aha!" exclaimed he triumphantly. "Of course, she's getting letters from her husband—Why not? That's to be expected. But, by the everlasting shag-pat, do you suppose that her husband knows she's off here with another fellow who masquerades as her husband? No!" He almost shouted it. "I've never heard of anything so brazen. 'Gad, what nerve these Americans have! Just to think of it!"

"I don't believe she is anything of the sort," declared his wife. "She's as good as gold. You can't fool me, Carney. I know women."

"Deuce take it, Agatha, so do I. And wot's more, I know men."

"They're a poor lot, the kind you know. This pseudo Medcroft is not your kind. He's a very clever chap and a gentleman."

"Now, look here, Agatha, don't imagine that I'm going to be such a cad as to turn against 'em in their hour of trial. Not I. I'm more their friend than ever. I'll help 'em to get away from here, and I'll bulldoze these Rodneys into holding their peace forever after. It's the Rodney duplicity that I can't stand."

"Shall we stay here, or shall we find an excuse to leave?" she asked pointedly.

"We'll stay long enough for me to tell the Rodneys wot I think of 'em. I'll have an answer to my dispatch by night. Then I should advise you to have a talk with Mrs. Medcroft. You've invited her to the house, you know. Tell her there can't be two Medcrofts. See wot I mean? We'll see 'em through this, but—well, you understand."

CHAPTER XII.

"I do love you."

MEANTIME a telegram had preceded a lengthy letter into the department of the police, both directed to Herr Bauer, who in reality was James Githens of Scotland Yard. The telegram had said: "Why do you say M. is there? He is in London." Explain. Letter tomorrow." The letter had come, and Mr. Githens as well as the local police office was "bowled over," to express it in Scotland Yard English. He had wired his employers that "M. is still in Innsbruck. Cannot be in London." It was very clearly set forth in the letter that Roxbury Medcroft was in London and his voice—wonder if you was a silly if I were to tell you that you, very, very much." His hand dropped upon hers as she smiled aimlessly with the men something in the very helpless that long, slim hand drew the soul of all his love toward it—all confident, arrogant love that had to be so sure of itself in the days. His gray eyes, dark with purpose of his passion, took on and impelling glow; she looked them for an instant, the white smile of last resort on her part, then her lids dropped quickly and a lip trembled.

"I should still think you very she said in a very low voice, "I unless you do love me."

His fingers closed so tightly, hers that she looked up, her eye ming with tenderness. Neither for a long minute, but words were needed to tell what the soul was going through the eyes.

"I do love you—you know I do. I've loved you from the first. I cannot live without you. Darling, you won't keep me away. You will be my wife—you will be at once? You do love me, I know it for days and days."

She whimsically broke in upon passionate declaration, saying pretty petulance: "Oh, you. What insufferable conceit! I—"

He laughed joyously. "I never so sure of anything in my life said. 'You couldn't help loving Constance; I've loved you so don't have to tell me, dear; I still, I'd like to hear you say those dear lips as well as with eyes, that you love me.'"

She put her hand upon the broad one which held the other, light in her eyes. "I do love you said simply.

"God, but I'm a happy man!"

were conspicuously nice and agreeable to the Medcrofts and Miss Fowler. It may be said indeed that Mr. Odell-Carney went considerably out of his way to be agreeable to Mrs. Medcroft—so much so, in fact, that she made it a point to have some one else with her whenever she seemed likely to be left alone with him. The Rodneys struggled bravely and no doubt conscientiously to emulate the example set by the Odell-Carneys, but it was hardly to be expected that they could see new things through old world eyes. They grew very stiff and ceremonious—that is, the Rodney ladies did. It was their prerogative, of course. Were they not cousins of the Medcrofts?

Four or five days of uneasy pretense passed with a swiftness that irritated certain members of the party and a slowness that distressed the others. Days never were so short as those which the now recklessly infatuated Brock was spending. He was valiantly earning his way into the heart of Constance, a process that tried his patience exceedingly, for she was bitingly unimpressible if one were to judge by the calmness with which she fended off the inevitable though tardy assault. She kept him at arm's length. Appearances demanded a discreetness no matter how she may secretly have felt toward the good looking husband of her sister. To say that she was enjoying herself would be putting it much too tamely. She was reveling in the fun of the thing. It mattered little to her that people, her own cousins in particular, were looking upon her with cold and critical eyes. She knew down in her heart that she could throw a bomb among them at any time by the mere utterance of a single word. It mattered as little that Edith was beginning to chafe miserably under the strain of waiting and deception. The novelty had worn off for the wife of Roxbury. She was despairingly in love, and she was pining for the day to come when she could laugh again with real instead of simulated joyousness.

"Connie, dear," she would lament a dozen times a day, "it's growing unbearable. Oh, how I wish the three weeks were ended. Then I could have my Roxbury, and you could have my other Roxbury, and everybody wouldn't be pitying me and cavilling at you because I'm unhappily married."

"Why do you say I could have your other Roxbury?" demanded her sister on one occasion. "You forget father expects me to marry the Viscount. I—"

"You are so tiresome, Connie. Don't worry me with your love affairs—I don't want to hear them. There's Mr. Brock waiting for you in the garden."

"I know it, my dear. He's been waiting for an hour. I think it is good for him to wait," said the other, with airy confidence. "What does Roxy say in his letter this morning?"

"He says it will all be over in a day or two. Dear me, how I wish it were over now! I can't endure Cousin Mary's snippishness much longer, and as for Katherine! My dear, I hate that girl!"

"She's been very nice lately, Edith—ever since Freddie dropped me so completely. By the way, Burton was telling me today that Odell-Carney had been asking her some very curious and staggering questions about Tootles and your most private affairs."

"I know, my dear," groaned Edith. "He very politely remarked to me last night that Tootles made him think very strangely of a friend of his in you think of it?"

"My dear Carney, I don't know. Would you mind telling me what I am to read?"

"The Medcroft thing. Right there."

She read the article, her husband watching her face the while. Surprise, incredulity, dismay, succeeded each other in rapid changes. She was reading in sheer amazement of the doings of Roxbury Medcroft in connection with the county council's subcommittee—in London! The story went on to relate how Medcroft, implacable leader of the opposition to the "grafters," suddenly had appeared before the committee with the most astounding figures and facts to support his charges of rottenness on the part of the "clique;" his unexpected descent upon the scene had thrown the opposing leaders into a panic; every one had been led to believe that he was sojourning in the east. As a matter of fact, it was soon revealed, he had been in London secretly working on the problem for nearly three weeks, keeping discreetly under cover in order that his influence might not be thwarted. His array of facts, his bitter arraignment of the men who were trying to force the building bill through the council, staggered the whole city of London. At that writing it looked as though the bill would be overthrown, its promoters had been so completely put to rout. The committee would be compelled to take cognizance of the startling exposure. The people would demand a full thrashing out of the obnoxious deal. Roxbury Medcroft's name was on every one's lip. The Standard had profited by securing a great "beat."

The Odell-Carneys looked at each other in wonder and perplexity. "What does it mean?" asked the lady, her eyes narrowing.

"Look here, Agatha, this paper's at least two days old. Now, how the devil can Medcroft be in London and Innsbruck at the same time. He was here day before yesterday, wasn't he? I'm so offended unobserving!"

"Yes, yes, he was here. And this paper!" She paused irresolutely.

"Says he was there. 'Pon my word, it's most uncanny. There's some mystery here."

"I've got it, Carney! This is not Roxbury Medcroft."

"Good Gawd!"

"This explains everything. Heavens, Carney! This fellow is—his lover! She's running about the country with him. She's—"

"Her lover? 'Gad, my dear, he may have been so at one time, but he's the other one's lover now, take my word for it. I say, 'pon my soul, this is a charming game your friends the Rodneys have let us into. They"—

"My friends! Yours, you mean!" she retorted.

"Oh, come now! But let it go at that. They know, of course that this fellow isn't her husband, and yet, by gad, Agatha, they've gone about deliberately palming him off on us as the real article. They are actually sanctioning the whole!"

"Stop a moment, Carney," interrupted his wife. "The London chap may be the fraud. Let us go slow, my dear."

"Slow? How the devil can we go slow in such fast company? No! This fellow is the fraud. And they knew it too. They all know it. They"—

"Rubbish! You forget that the whole Rodney tribe is up in arms because Medcroft is making love to his wife's sister. They're not assuming anything in London." Explain. Letter tomorrow." The letter had come, and Mr. Githens as well as the local police office was "bowled over," to express it in Scotland Yard English. He had wired his employers that "M. is still in Innsbruck. Cannot be in London." It was very clearly set forth in the letter that Roxbury Medcroft was in London and that Mr. Githens of Scotland Yard had betrayed his trust. He was virtually charged with playing into the hands of the enemy—"selling out," as it were. It readily may be expected that Mr. Githens was accused of being in the employ of the "opposition." Moreover, it is but reasonable to assume that he took vigorous steps at once to vindicate himself, which accounts for the woe that lurked close behind the heels of a man named Brock.

Brock and Constance had ridden off that afternoon to visit the historic Schloss Ambras. The great castle had been saved for the very last of their explorations. He had just been able to secure permission to visit that part of the duke's residence open on certain occasions to the curious public. Edith had declined to accompany them. In the first place, she was expecting the all important message from her husband. She was "on nettles," to quote her plaintive eagerness. In the second place, she realized that as the crisis was at hand in the affairs of Brock and Constance her presence was not a necessary adjunct. Not only was she expecting a message from Roxbury, but eagerly anticipating an outburst of joyous news from the two who had, it seemed, very gladly left her behind.

The young couple returning by the lower road from the schloss came to a resting place at a little eating house and garden on the hillside overlooking the river inn. It is a quiet, demure, unfrequented place among the crags, standing in from the white roadway a hundred feet or more, clouded by gorgeous trees and somber cliffs. It was to this charming, romantic retreat that Brock led his fair, now tremulous innamorata. She, too, knew that the hour for decision had come. It was in the air, in the glint of his eyes, in the leaping of her heart. And she knew what she would say to him and what they would say to the world a few hours hence. The mountains seemed to have lost their splendid frown. They were beaming down upon her, tenderly caressing instead of bleak and foreboding as they always had been before.

A rosy cheeked girl came into the garden to serve them. Swift, cool breezes were scurrying down the valley, bearing in their wake the soft rain clouds that were soon to drench the earth and then radiantly pass on. They were quite alone, seated in the shelter of a wide, overhanging portico. A soft, green darkness was creeping over the mountain side, pregnant with smell of the shower.

Constance ordered tea and a bite of something to eat for both. Brock's gaze never left her exquisite face while she was engaged in the pretty but rather self conscious occupation of instructing the waitress. After the girl had departed, he leaned forward across the little table and said, a trifle hoarsely and disjointedly:

"It was most appetizing to watch you do that. I could live forever on nothing but tea and sandwiches if you were to order them."

"You've said a great many silly things to me this afternoon."

"I wonder"—he stopped and lower

Still, I'd like to hear you say those dear lips as well as with eyes, that you love me."

She put her hand upon the broad one which held the other, light in her eyes. "I do love you said simply."

"God, but I'm a happy man!" ulted. Forgetful of the time place, he half arose and, leaning ward, kissed her full upon the ed lips.

There was a rattling of cloth behind them. In no little a both came tumbling down from dis and found themselves un abashed scrutiny of a very re young serving woman.

"Oh, never mind," stammered chen quite amiably. "I am that, madam. A great many and gentlemen come here to—t you call it?" She placed the sandwiches before them, her fi thumbs, her cheeks aglow.

Brock pulled himself together sternly he said, "This young la be my wife."

"Ach," said Gretchen, with a ly smile and the utmost de "that is what they all say, mei Then, giggling approvingly, she away.

Brock waited until she was sight. "She seems to be on t Freddie would say. But wha care? I'd like to stand on to Bandjoch and shout the new world. Wouldn't you, dearest?" "The world wouldn't hear u she said coolly. "Besides, it's up there. Just look at it s down upon us. Goodness!"

He laughed hilariously, am her attempt to be casual and ent. "You can't turn it off so that, dearest," he cried. "Come it rains we may plan. You wi me—tomorrow?"

"No!" she cried, aghast. "Ho ly ridiculous!"

His gloved finger pressed upon hers as she fumbled with the menu card; in the very helplessness of her slim hand drew the strength of his love toward it—all of this it, arrogant love that had come so sure of itself in these last days of his gray eyes, dark with the fire of his passion, took on a new pelling glow; she looked into the eyes of an instant, the wavering of her last resort on her parted lips; her lids dropped quickly and her face

Her fingers closed so tightly upon his hand she looked up, her eyes swim-

With tenderness. Neither spoke a word for a minute, but words were not so far away as the soul was saying the eyes.

"I love you—you know I do, Connie. I loved you from the first day I met you. I live without you. Connie, you won't keep me waiting? I'll be my wife—you will marry me, won't you? You do love me. I like to hear you say, with your lips as well as with your eyes, that you love me.'"

He put her hand upon the back of the chair which held the other; there was a proud, earnest look in her eyes. "I do love you," she said.

"I'm a happy man!" he exclaimed, forgetful of the time and the upon the drenched universe with eyes that saw nothing but sweet sunshine and fair weather.

The clattering of horses' hoofs upon the hard mountain road sounded suddenly above the hiss of the rainstorm. It was quite dark by this time, night having been hurried on by the lowering skies. A moment later three horsemen, drenched to the skin, drew up in front of the inn, threw their reins over the posts and dashed for shelter. They came noisily into the arbor, growling and stamping their soggy feet.

"What, ho!" called one of the newcomers, sticking his head through a window of the house. Brock and Miss Fowler looked on, amused by the plight of the riders. Two of them were unquestionably officers of the police, the third seemed to be an Englishman. They were gruff, burly fellows, all of them. For a few minutes they stormed and growled about their miserable luck in being caught in the downpour, ordering schnapps and brandy in large and instant quantities. At last the Englishman, a heavy, sour faced man, turned his gaze in the direction of the lovers, who sat quite close together in the dark corner. His gaze developed into a stare, then a look of triumph. A moment later he was pointing out the couple to his companions, all three peering at them with excited eyes.

Brock's face went red under the rude stare. He was on the point of resenting it when the Englishman stepped forward. The American arose at once.

"I've been looking for you, Mr. Medcroft—If that is your name," said the stranger, halting in front of the table. "My name is Githens, Scotland Yard. These men have an order for your arrest. I'd advise you to go with them peaceably. The young woman will not be bothered. She is free to go."

"What are you talking about?" demanded Brock angrily. Suddenly he felt a chill of misgiving. What had Roxbury Medcroft been doing that he should be subject to arrest?

"You are masquerading here as Roxbury Medcroft, the architect. You are not Medcroft. I have watched you for weeks. Today we have learned that Medcroft is in London. Your linen is marked with a letter B. You've drawn money on a letter of credit together with a woman who signs herself as Edith F. Medcroft. There is something wrong with you, Mr. B., and these officers, acting for the hotel and the state bank, have been instructed to detain you pending an investigation."

Mr. Githens was vindictive himself. He may have been a trifle disconcerted by Miss Fowler's musical laugh and Brock's plain guffaw, but he managed to preserve a stiff dignity. "It's no laughing matter. Officers, this is your man. Take him in charge. Madam, as I understand it, you are the alleged sister of the woman who is working herself off as Mrs. Medcroft. It may accuse is an American citizen!" she stammered.

"Oho! Then he is not an Englishman?"

"I refuse to answer your questions. You are impertinent. I ask you, sir, as the manager of this hotel, to eject this man from my rooms." The manager smiled blandly and did not eject the man.

"But, madam," he said, "we have a right to know who and what you are. If Mr. Medcroft is in London this gentleman surely cannot be he, the real Mr. Medcroft. We must have an explanation."

"I'll—I will explain everything tomorrow. Oh, by the way, is there a telegram for me in the office? There must be. I've been expecting it all day. I telegraphed to London for it."

"There is no telegram down there, madam."

At this juncture Mr. Odell-Carney appeared on the scene uninvited, but welcome.

"What's all this?" he demanded sternly. Everybody proceeded at once to tell him. Somehow he got the drift of the story. "Get out, all of you!" he said. "I stand sponsor for Mrs. Medcroft. She is Mrs. Medcroft, hang you, sir. If you come around here bothering her again I'll have the law upon you. The Medcrofts are English citizens and"—

"Oh, they are, are they?" sneered Mr. Githens, with a sinister chuckle.

"Who the devil are you, sir?"

"I'm from Scotland Yard."

"I thought so. You've proved it, 'pon my soul. I am Odell-Carney. Daresay you've heard of me."

"I know you by sight, sir. But that"—

"Clever chap, by Jove! And there's no but about it. Mr.—never mind what it is. I don't want to know your name. Mrs. Medcroft, will you permit me to send my wife up to you? Mr. Manager, I insist that you take this confounded rabble down to the office and tell them to go to the devil! Don't do it up here; do it down there."

The City Prison.

THE anticlimax had struck the Hotel Tirol some hours be- fore it came upon Brock and Miss Fowler. Mr. Githens de- manded the person of the man calling himself Roxbury Medcroft. The principal bank in the city was also repre- sented in the company of investigators. Likewise there was a laconic gentle- man from the British office.

Mr. Medcroft was out. Then, they agreed, it was necessary to see Mrs. Medcroft, or the lady representing her- self to be such. Mr. Githens was per- mitted to go to her rooms in company with the manager of the hotel. What transpired in those rooms during the next fifteen minutes would be quite impossible to narrate short of an en- tire volume. Edith promptly collapsed. Subsequently she became hysterical. She begged for time, and, getting it, proceeded to threaten every one with prosecution.

"I am Mrs. Medcroft!" she declared piteously. "Where is the American consul? I demand the American consul!"

"What has the American government to do with it?" gruffly demanded Mr. Githens.

Worthy of the world's best music

To most of us the chance to hear human playing of good music comes infrequently. Only in the great cities are the appetites of the music-hungry satisfied. Even then one can hear but a small part of all the worth while concerts.

Fortunately for those who love the masters of the past, and who have the judgment to recognize in present day composers the master of the future, there is the Edison Phonograph. It is worthy of Wagner, of Bach, of Puccini. The clear, sweet tone, remarkable in its purity, is simply a translation of human music into your own home. Unless you have heard the newest Edisons, you have no conception of their wonderful mellow quality. You never realized that such beauty could be applied to sound.

Ask your Edison dealer to play one of the Blue Amberol Records—then you will know that the whole world of good music—past and present—is open to you.

A Work of Supererogation.

Johnson had just recovered from one of the periodical sprees to which he was addicted. During the sobering off process he met the village good samaritan, who had often helped him over the rough places in his almost worthless life. Shamed and in a repentant mood, he confessed:

"Well, Miss Polly, I certainly have been making a fool of myself again. I found I didn't have to make many alterations to complete the job."

The Nature Lover.

Few adult persons can see nature. Most persons do not see the sun; at least, they have a very superficial seeing. The sun illuminates only the eye of the man, but shines into the eye and heart of the child. The lover of nature is he whose inward and outward senses are still truly adjusted to each other, who has retained the spirit of infancy even into the era of manhood.—Emerson.

AMERICA'S CRACK QUACKS.

American quack society, exclusive of humans, consists of the Pekin, Indian Runner, Aylesbury, Rouen, Cayuga, East India, Call, Blue Swedish, Muscovy and Crested.

They all descended from the wild Mallard except the Muscovy, a native of South America and the only duck that nests and roosts in trees.

America's most prominent ducks are the Pekin and Indian Runner, and they head the waddler procession because of peculiar, practical characteristics.

The Pekin, origin China, has been changed by American experts into the finest market duck in the world. It is large, long bodied, wide backed, broad breasted, deep keeled, of elevated carriage in front, sloping toward rear and is well rounded all around. It is a fast grower, easily forced for market, hardy, reaching in adults twenty-five pounds to the pair, and when well fed presents a most beautiful golden yellow carcass, and it is also an excellent Fanciers often lose the ribbons because they do not tame birds. The judge has enough to him and to hurry him without having to grab a half dozen times for a skunk.

Such a bird never poses to show his good points because he has been trained. Taming should begin when they are young.

Skunks near a poultry plant should not give a poultryman cold feet. A chance to make easy money by as they walk right into a trap, hides bring good money. If you accidentally collide with a skunk burn nor bury your raiment; have over smoking cedar and it will lose that polecat perfume.

A slick trick to get chickens was the trouble of a midnight raid worked by an individual who visited Pennsylvania poultry dealers in guise of "chicken inspector" and claimed he was sent out by the state department to collect "sample chickens." He displayed a badge and gat lots of samples and then mysteriously disappeared.

The high price of winter eggs will induce many to go in for chickens in spring to get pullets to lay fresh for them next winter. It is wise in these times to remember that not every strain of fowls is a good winter layer.

Poultry experts of the department of animal husbandry, Washington still on the hunt for a noiseless cock. If late snoring Washington society demands a noiseless cockade why not also a yapless poodle?

When Morris Linker of Williams Pa., shot a dog that carried off one of his prize hens he was at once arraigned for cruelty to animals because he used a rifle and the bullet only wounded the brute. While a load of shot buckshot would be a surer finish, quiet talk with the owner of such a dog generally abates the nuisance without any unpleasant complications.

Good Roads Improve Social Conditions

NO matter what your station in life or where you live, a certain amount of your time must be spent in pleasure to make life worth the living, and to obtain that pleasure you go to town or to your neighbors—especially is this true when living in the country.

Good Roads enable you to get into town or to your neighbors quicker, more often and without you or your horses or vehicles being covered with mud, and without regard to weather conditions or season. They enable your family physician to get to you quickly in times of illness. They enable your children to "foot it" to school every school-day. They keep your boys and girls on the farm by giving them better conditions generally.

Concrete Roads

are "every-day" roads—they have no "closed season" because they are open to traffic every day in the year. They are the most economical roads because they reduce the cost of maintenance to the minimum. They are easy of traction, clean, hard and free of ruts and holes. They keep your road money out of the mud.

Let us send you, without cost, complete information about concrete roads.

The real Runner lays a large white egg much on the style of the Minorca, and when sold "accidentally on purpose" for the latter epicures declare them the most delicious Minorca eggs they ever ate.

DON'TS.

Don't call yourself an expert until your work proves you such and others declare you such.

Don't expect customers not to kick at dressed fowls with full crops. Sell feed if you will, but don't try to pass it off as dressed poultry.

Don't go into the exclusive broiler business unless you know the business and you have a market or you may have a broiler explosion.

Don't expect to go right along making money hand over fist in poultry. You will have reverses, but reverses are not always curses.

Don't rush to sell off young stock unless you are an expert on development. Many a young fowl sent to market would have made a high mark for breeding and show if it had been allowed to grow.

For the Sake of Peace.

"That's what I call hush money!" remarked a father as he put down the cash for a bottle of paregoric for the infantile members of his family.

PLACE FAVORS.

Inexpensive and Easily Made Table Decorations.

Hostesses are always on the lookout for original place favors. The latest idea in this line is in the edible table decoration.

Oranges selected carefully for their perfect appearance can be formed into baskets by cutting one in half, with the exception of a narrow strip at the top which is used as a handle. All the inside of the orange is, of course, removed. The baskets thus formed are then crystallized in the following manner:

Put them in cold water to soak for about two hours, drain carefully and replace in fresh water and boil for one hour. Drain again and boil for another half hour. After pouring off this water add one cupful of granulated sugar and boil, stirring constantly until it candies—about five minutes. Place the baskets on plates and shower them with sugar. Put away to harden thoroughly. Small candies that harmonize with the deep yellow of the orange are used as fillings.

Crystallized grapefruit is a delicious homemade confection. After removing all the pulp cut the skins into narrow strips and put them into enough water to cover them, leaving them to soak over night. In the morning drain off the water. Cover again with cold water and put over the fire to boil for an hour. Drain once more and place in boiling water, allowing the skins to cook for fully another hour. Pour off this water and add a cupful of sugar and stir constantly until it candies. Turn out and roll each piece in granulated sugar and place on a platter to dry.

Cut bright red apples in half. Carefully scoop out the meat, but leave enough to form a white lining for the shining skin. Make a thick sirup of sugar, and when slightly cooled immerse the half apples and set them aside to harden. Place them on small paper doilies after filling them with selected nut meats.

FOR WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

A Colonial Supper a Nice Way of Entertaining.

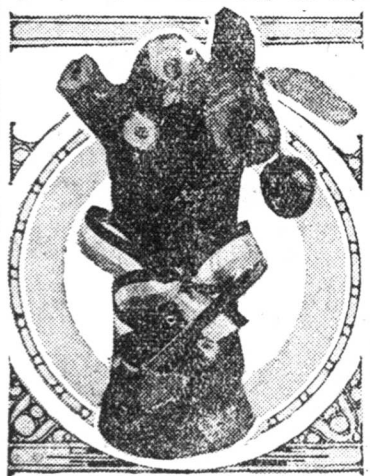

There are all sorts of clever ideas that can be worked out for a Washington's birthday entertainment, whether for children, young people or their elders.

For the latter a real colonial supper, served as far as possible with colonial dishes and silver and with the partic-pants attired in colonial dress, seems to be the most appreciated.

For the youngsters plenty of cherries, cocked hats, hatchets and cannon ball arrangements provide the patriotic setting required. If they are allowed to "dress up" with cocked hats, knee breeches, shoes with buckles, powdered hair, wigs and patches their joy will know no bounds.

An old folks' concert makes a delightful way of celebrating the day.

THE CHERRY TREE BOX.

At a woman's club social last year a dwarf cherry tree was hung full of realistic cherries made from red paper. When opened these were found to contain limericks on each of the guests. As each limerick was read the one to whom it referred took her place in the line until all were out. Then, while standing, the company joined in singing old time melodies.

Boxes that look like the stumps of real cherry trees are cut out of wood or made of papier mache. These are shown in the shops as favors for the Washington's birthday entertainment. Filled with bonbons or inclosing a small gift, they make nice souvenirs for the bridge or dinner party or for the afternoon tea. One of the boxes is illustrated here. A bow of tricolored ribbon encircles it, and a miniature hatchet and artificial cherries give the touch of timeliness.

New Bottle Stopper.

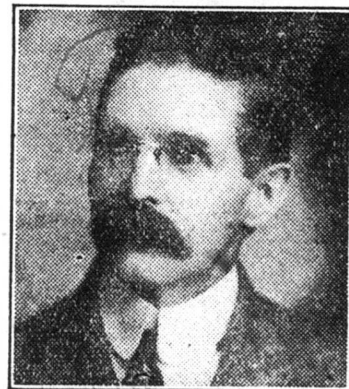

There is a new bottle stopper which is ideal. It could not be described as an automatic cork, and yet it almost amounts to this. There is a cork, or, rather stopper, arrangement of nickel that has a rubber socket cap. This claps down over the mouth of the bottle from which the original cork has been removed. The stopper fits firmly, for the reason its supporting mechanism is fitted to the neck of the bottle by means of an easily adjusted collar that will fit any size bottle. By pressing a lever at the side the stopper is instantly released.

Care of Teapots.

A musty odor sometimes develops in a rarely used silver teapot that is considered too precious—from associations—for daily use. When put away to be brought out for state occasions only see that it is carefully cleaned and dried; then drop into it a lump of sugar, and there will be no more mustiness if the sugar is renewed at long intervals.

REMARKABLE CURE OF RHEUMATISM

Supt. Of Sunday School In Toronto
Cured By "Fruit-a-tives"

R. A. WAUGH, Esq.

TORONTO, ONT., Oct. 1st, 1913.

"For a long time, I have thought of writing you regarding what I term a most remarkable cure effected by your remedy "Fruit-a-tives". I have lived in this city for more than 12 years and am well known. I suffered from Rheumatism especially in my hands. I have spent a lot of money without any good results. I have taken "Fruit-a-tives" for 18 months now and am pleased to tell you that I am cured. All the enlargement has not left my hands and perhaps never will, but the soreness is all gone and I can do any kind of work. I have gained 35 pounds in 18 months".

R. A. WAUGH,

55 DOVERCOURT ROAD.

"Fruit-a-tives" will always cure even the most stubborn cases of Rheumatism because it is the greatest blood purifier in the world and acts on the bowels, kidneys and skin.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c, or will be sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Awful.

"I don't know what we are coming to," said Mrs. McGudley, polishing her glasses. "I'm sure we'll have to come to some kind of literary censorship."

"What's the trouble now?"

"My granddaughter tells me that the teacher has been giving her class a long talk about improper nouns."

Anonymous.

A teacher in one of the public schools asked her pupils to write a sentence which would introduce the word "anonymous," explaining to them the word meant "without a name." When the papers were handed in this startling sentence met her eye, "On my way to school this morning I saw an anonymous cow."

Makes Healthy Bowels

THIS simple rule of health is daily called attention to by every doctor in the land, whose first question to the patient almost invariably is, "Are your bowels regular?" Yet there's not one person in fifty who takes proper care of the bowels. And the result of this foolish neglect is nine-tenths of all ill-health.

If today you are unable to free your body of waste-matter at the usual time, or if the act causes straining, pains and discomfort, don't let that condition occur again tomorrow. Unless your bowels can carry away the waste materials left after food is digested, decay sets in, the poisons of which, taken up by the blood, increase the risk of Typhoid Fever, Appendicitis, and many other serious diseases.

In treating constipation, there is a right way and a wrong way. The wrong way is to take harsh purgatives which even though they do clear the bowels, cause griping and nausea, injure the delicate tissues, and so disturb the normal functions as to cause the return of constipation. The right way is to help Nature to produce natural movement, without pain or discomfort, by using

More Than One Hundred Million Were Sold Last Year

This enormous quantity was used with good results by busy men who suffered from constipation, due to lack of exercise, or indigestion caused by overwork—by children whose parents realize the harmful effect of common purgatives—by old people whose systems cannot stand anything harsh—by women during pregnancy, and after childbirth, when any medicine with a violent action would be particularly dangerous. Many of these people are your neighbors and friends. Ask anyone who has ever used them—they'll tell you Rexall Orderlies satisfied and helped them.

—a gentle laxative in the form of a chocolate-tasting tablet. One of these tablets eaten just before going to bed will help to restore your bowels to normal activity at a time when, your body being at rest, the medicine can do its best work. As a result of taking that tablet (or say two, if your case is obstinate), your bowels will move easily and naturally in the morning. The use of Rexall Orderlies for a few days afterward will restore normal regularity. Even chronic constipation is benefited by them, and it is not necessary to continue the treatment for a long time, because, instead of driving Nature, they simply help her to help herself.

Election of Officers.

At the annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society, Trinity Church, the following officers were elected:

President—Mrs. W. J. Young.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. H. Creighton.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. F. S. Richardson.
3rd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. S. L. Daly.
Rec. Sec.—Mrs. W. J. Shannon.
Cor. Sec.—Mrs. J. R. Dafoe.
Treasurer—Mrs. J. E. Robinson.
Supt. of Mission Band—Miss E. Hawley.

Agent for Missionary Outlook—Mrs. W. Vanalstine.

Supts. of systematic giving—Mrs. James Daly, Mrs. Stephen Gibson.

Card of Thanks.

Napanee, April 15th, 1914.

To the Editor of the Napanee

Express:

Dear Sir—I wish to express my thanks to the Fire Brigade for their careful and efficient work at the fire in our flat on Monday last. Their work was a revelation to me. Their motto seemed to be "Save from Fire" not "Flood with Water," and on that account our contents were saved without being removed from the flat. The curtains on the window through which the hose ran were not soiled, except from smoke, and the bedding in the room where the fire was located was not even touched with water. As long as they do as efficient and careful work our citizens should be proud of them.

Yours truly,
G. A. CATON.

Ask the milk-drawer about our milk-cans, and he will tell you that they are the best on the waggon. All sizes, and we have a good stock on hand, but they won't last long. M. S. Madole.

HERE'S GOOD NEWS FOR DYSPEPTICS.

We have good news for every person in this town who has any form of stomach trouble. It is about a remedy for indigestion and dyspepsia that we have so much faith in as to offer it to you with our personal guarantee that if it does not relieve you in every way, we will refund the money you paid for it without question or argument of any kind. You risk nothing; either Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets will relieve your stomach ailments or the money you paid for them will be handed back to you. There is no red tape about our guarantee. It means just what it says. Your word is enough. If Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets don't satisfy you, the money is yours and we want you to have it.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets soothe the inflamed stomach, check heartburn and distress, stimulate a healthy secretion of gastric juice, aid in rapid and comfortable digestion of the food, and help to quickly restore the stomach to a comfortable, easy-acting healthy state. They also aid greatly in promoting regular bowel action. Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are sold only at the 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. Three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00. Wallace's Drug Store, Limited.

Back to Bicycles

It is a well known fact that the Bicycle is becoming more popular in Canada than ever, and owing to this fact we have this spring placed in stock the largest and most varied assortment of Bicycles, Tires and Sundries ever brought to Napanee, and owing to our being in a position to buy in such large quantities, we are able to give greater bargains than ever before.

Our Bicycles consist of the following well-known and reliable makes, CLEVELAND, MASSEY - HARRIS, QUICKSTEP, and our own well-known make, the NORMILE SPECIAL, which we guarantee second to none.

We are also in a position to sell you as good a Bicycle as can be sold in Canada at $23.50.

We have in stock at the present time 200 pairs Dunlop tires which we are selling at greatly reduced prices. We can sell you Dunlop Covers from $1.25 upwards.

Our long experience in the business has taught us what the public wants and we have what you want at the right price.

We are also agents for the celebrated Harley-Davidson Motorcycle and the famous Ford Motor Cars.
